

Southern Living[®]
SPECIAL COLLECTOR'S EDITION

SMALL-SPACE GARDENS

MAKE EVERY INCH COUNT

EASY IDEAS FOR CONTAINERS,
HERBS, CLIMBERS & MORE

DISPLAY UNTIL 06/07/19

$12.99US $15.99CAN

95>

BHG SPECIALS

Plus!
LITTLE GARDENS
WITH BIG STYLE

No 9

REBUILD WITH CHARM

THE BIG IDEA In renovating their historic Charleston Single House, Olivia and Walker Brock wanted to create an outdoor living space for entertaining. To connect the space to the adjacent kitchen, they replaced a first-floor window with a new set of French doors. Moving air-conditioning units to the roof opened up a world of possibilities in the garden with a patio ready for hosting alfresco lunches and evening cocktails.

THE DETAILS The Brocks fooled the eye with downsized plantings running parallel and perpendicular to the house's rear facade, creating a square that seems like an outdoor family room. Olivia wanted the patio to feel European, with furnishings that went together but didn't exactly match. The wicker chairs are from IKEA, the sofa is from Ballard Designs, and the dining table and benches (which Walker spray-painted) are from Pottery Barn. "I wanted it to feel like it had evolved and been collected over time—not just thrown together in an afternoon," says Olivia.

Mismatched furniture from a variety of retail sources lends a rich, layered look to this patio.

No 9

REBUILD WITH CHARM

THE BIG IDEA In renovating their historic Charleston Single House, Olivia and Walker Brock wanted to create an outdoor living space for entertaining. To connect the space to the adjacent kitchen, they replaced a first-floor window with a new set of French doors. Moving air-conditioning units to the roof opened up a world of possibilities in the garden with a patio ready for hosting alfresco lunches and evening cocktails.

THE DETAILS The Brocks fooled the eye with downsized plantings running parallel and perpendicular to the house's rear facade, creating a square that seems like an outdoor family room. Olivia wanted the patio to feel European, with furnishings that went together but didn't exactly match. The wicker chairs are from IKEA, the sofa is from Ballard Designs, and the dining table and benches (which Walker spray-painted) are from Pottery Barn. "I wanted it to feel like it had evolved and been collected over time—not just thrown together in an afternoon," says Olivia.

Mismatched furniture from a variety of retail sources lends a rich, layered look to this patio.